

Introduction to Computers
COT 101 [all sections]
Southwestern College Professional Studies

COURSE SYLLABUS

I. Course Catalog Description

This course explores the wide range of computer devices, operating systems, and the most common types of software applications. Learners study ways to configure and troubleshoot computer systems to meet user needs, implement programs and features that maximize productivity and enhance communication, and examine the impact of computers in society and participate in discussions of ethics and laws that have arisen due to our technologically reliant culture.

II. Required and Supplementary Instructional Materials

All required and supplementary materials are included in the course.

III. Course Delivery

There are two forms of course delivery: Ground and Online:

Ground courses, or those that meet face-to-face on a weekly basis, also have an online component, which means some of the course content is delivered online. Southwestern College utilizes the Blackboard (Bb) learning management system.

Online courses typically contain a blend of synchronous (real-time) and asynchronous (not real-time) material. Depending on the course, you may be required at times to interact “live,” which might mean attending a scheduled Collaborate session. You may also be required to view or listen to a lecture or other video on a specific date and time. Of course, if there are circumstances that prohibit you from logging in to a scheduled synchronous activity, an alternate assignment will be provided. Please refer to the Course at a Glance section which will note any synchronous activities.

IV. Learning Outcomes

Learning outcomes describe the knowledge, skills, values, and attitudes that learners gain as the result of a particular learning experience. Southwestern College Professional Studies has learning outcomes specific to each course and each undergraduate and graduate program of study, as well as institution-wide outcomes related to the mission and vision of the college. Outcomes can help learners and instructors focus on the big picture of the learning experience and can help inform potential employers about a graduate’s knowledge and skills.

Upon successfully completing this course, the learner will be able to:

1. Configure computers and related devices to meet personal or business needs, selecting appropriate computer systems and devices from a wide array of hardware options.
2. Use basic troubleshooting methods for computer systems and related hardware, software, and networks.
3. Identify and select software applications for specific tasks while addressing end-user needs.
4. Maintain operating systems and utilities to maximize productivity and establish effective file management systems.
5. Use database applications to address business needs by searching and querying data, developing forms and reports, and managing information.
6. Use computer communication networks, including the Internet, and effectively use tools such as e-mail to communicate within those networks.
7. Discuss the impact of computers in society, including merits and disadvantages, as well as career choices that have opened up as a result of computers’ prevalence in our culture.

At the end of the course, learners may vary in their ability to achieve these outcomes. You are more likely to achieve these outcomes only if you attend class and/or online activities as required by the syllabus, complete the requirements for all assignments to the best of your ability, participate actively in class activities and group work as directed, and study diligently for exams.
