COURSE SYLLABUS

I. Course Catalog Description

This course explores the major themes in geography--human and environment in interaction, patterns of distribution of natural phenomena affecting human use of the earth, and the cultural patterns of occupancy and exploitation of the natural world.

II. Required and Supplementary Instructional Materials

Dahlman, C. H., Renwick, W. H., & Bergman, E. (2014). Introduction to geography: People, places, and environment (6th ed.). Upper Saddle River, NJ: Pearson Education.

III. Course Delivery

There are two forms of course delivery Ground and Online:

Ground courses, or those that meet face-to-face on a weekly basis, also have an online component, which means some of the course content is delivered online. Southwestern College utilizes the Blackboard (Bb) learning management system.

Online courses typically contain a blend of synchronous (real-time) and asynchronous (not real-time) material. Depending on the course, you may be required at times to interact "live," which might mean attending a scheduled Collaborate session. You may also be required to view or listen to a lecture or other video on a specific date and time. Of course, if there are circumstances that prohibit you from logging in to a scheduled synchronous activity, an alternate assignment will be provided. Please refer to the Course at a Glance section which will note any synchronous activities.

IV. Learning Outcomes

Learning outcomes describe the knowledge, skills, values, and attitudes that learners gain as the result of a particular learning experience. Southwestern College Professional Studies has learning outcomes specific to each course and each undergraduate and graduate program of study, as well as institution-wide outcomes related to the mission and vision of the college. Outcomes can help learners and instructors focus on the big picture of the learning experience and can help inform potential employers about a graduate's knowledge and skills.

Upon successfully completing this course, the learner will be able to:

- Identify broad themes within geography, the types of questions addressed by geographers, and the tools used to conduct geographic research
- Apply the major theories of physical geography to understanding the natural landscape, including plate tectonics, erosional landforms, basic weather processes, the distribution of climates, and the distribution of biota and resources
- Explain the distribution of people across the Earth on the basis of population, migration, and resources
- Recognize the spatial factors that shape human socio-spatial diversity, distributions of populations, and human impacts on their environments
- Discuss the role of political systems in shaping local, regional, and global processes and interactions

- Identify different forms of economic activity and explain the ways they are shaped by political systems and how they shape geopolitics
- Describe the process of urbanization and globalization, the processes by which humans modify the natural environment (particularly climate change and agriculture), and the ramifications of those changes for different populations
- Apply concepts of space and place to understand and identify how regions are defined and the ramifications for local and global processes

At the end of the course, learners may vary in their ability to achieve these outcomes. You are more likely to achieve these outcomes only if you attend class and/or online activities as required by the syllabus, complete the requirements for all assignments to the best of your ability, participate actively in class activities and group work as directed, and study diligently for exams.

V. Expectations

XVI. Senior Capstone and Graduate Projects:

The majority of the programs offered by Southwestern College Professional Studies conclude with a Senior Capstone or Graduate Project. During the Capstone or Project course students will be required to retrieve papers, assignments and projects that they created during their entire program of study. For this reason it is imperative that students design a method of storing program course work for use during their final class at Southwestern College Professional Studies.
